The estimates submitted today are $22,864,067 in excess of the appropriations for the last fiscal year, but their total falls $39,255,066 below the estimates for that year, exclusive of the postoffice. The estimates are as fol-sary if the United States is to keep abreast in this science and "be prepared to cope with other first-class powers in case of war."

The estimates for the organized militia are larger by many millions than in previous years. Sums of $1.350,000 for field camps of instruction, $404,250 for equipment of coast artillery armories, $2,100,000 for field artillery material and $2,000,000 for ammunition for such artillery for militia are asked.

For armament in fortifications the estimate is $5,506,800, an increase of more than $3,000,000 over last year. This $3,000,000 is to be expended in the purchase, manufacture and test of ammunition for mountain, field and slege cannon, and a large part of the remainder is to be used in altering old-style field and coast artillery guns.

Another large item is $592,000 for barracks and quarters at Fort Shafter and at Schofield barracks, Hawaii. The estimate for continuing seacoast defenses in the Philippines and Hawaii is put at $951,632. The war department estimates that $26,25955 must be appropriated for the Panama canal in $156, which is about $5,000,000 more than the current appropriation.

For miscellaneous material for the

which is about $5,000,000 more than the current appropriation.

For miscellaneous material for the canal $10,459,000 is asked, and $2,551,-850 is wanted for fortifications. Of the appropriation for fortifications $1,268,-580 is to be spent for army quarters to provide accommodations in all for ten companies of coast artillery, and $780,-850 is for installation of ten six-inch suns, seven fourteen-inch guns and twenty-eight twelve-inch mortars.

Bureau of Corporations.

One of the most interesting items in the long list of estimates is that of $478,500 for saiaries and expenses of special attorneys, examiners and agents of the bureau of corporations, an increase of $300,000 over last year. In a note accompanying the request for this additional sum congress is told.

"This increase is due entirely to the plan projected for additional work to be done by the bureau of corporations. This plan has to do with. The facts on stocks and bond issues, holding companies, interlocking directories, etc., the economy and efficiency of trusts and interstate corporations, and conflicting state laws."

terstate corporations, and conflicting state laws."

The department of commerce asks for $100,000, to be used in investigating the cost of production of articles dutiable in the United States, in leading countries where they are produced. These investigations are to go fully into wages, material, costs, profits and other features. The sum of $150,000 is asked also for the salaries and expenses of commercial attaches who are to be credited to the state department and who are to investigate and report upon foreign manufacturing conditions of interest in this country.

The census bureau wants $925,000 for collecting statistics, of which $566,400 is for a census of manufactures. For an investigation of the materials used in rails, wheels and axles and other railway equipment and the cause of their failure $30,000 is asked.

Secretary McAdoo estimates that he will need $1,500,000 to collect the income tax. He says an increase is necessary because the tax collection machinery will be perfected by the time the appropriation is made and because investigations will be made to determine cases of taxes withheld in previous years.

GENERAL BLISS IS UNABLE TO STOP THE SMUGGLERS

American border patrol has found it well nigh impossible to enforce the embargo against the shipment of arms and ammunition into Mexico was described in a report from Reignation (2). scribed in a report from Brigadier General Bliss, commanding the forces on the border, made public today at the war department. Practically the entire population along the international line, the report said, is in sympathy with the Mexican rebels, and as the result large mexican rebels, and as the result large quantities of war munitions have been smuggled across in spite of the unceasing vigilance of the troopers.

General Bliss complained of the vagueness of the law, saying that the instructions to the army are so general that too much of a task was imposed upon the troopers and junior officers. He recommended that two of the best equipped officers of the government's egal force be sent down to travel along line and decide questions of doubtful rights and powers.

In this connection the general referred to instructions sent to him last June to hold troops in readiness to go to the aid of the threatened American representative at Piedras For several days the general onsular Negras. cointed out, the question of possible care or war rested entirely upon the liscretion of this consul, as it was a coregone conclusion that the American soldiers would have had to fight their way into Mexico if the necessity of protecting the consul had arisen.

Orozco's Men Lawless.

The necessity of keeping a considerable portion of the United States army on the border for an indefinite period was forecast in the report. General Bliss, who has been on the line since the beginning of the Madero revolution, called attention to the fulfillment of his prediction that the breaking up of Orozco's army last year into small bands would not restore peace because the large lawless element among the troops would not consent to return to ordinary vocations.

"This attitude," the report said, "especially characterized the leaders and forces in the state of Chihunhua. These are the forces that have always been popularly known along the border as 'red flaggers.' Their leaders preach the distribution of land and wealth generally, and apparently have small concern with any other faction of the revolution.

"A consideration of these facts is of interest, as they suggest another fore-casting of the future. The conditions across the border which lead to one successful revolution unfortunately seem always to point the way to a counter revolution. If this be the case, the first reasonable hope of continued peace will come when an established covernment proves strong enough to peace will come when an established government proves strong enough to crush the counter revolution. The prevalence of the present conditions means the continued occupation of the border by a strong force of troops. The success of the present revolution probably will mean the indefinite continuance of revolution is thoroughly crushed (at least in the northern states) and the established government can occupy and hold its own border towns, normal conditions will be restored and a distribution of our troops will be possible."

Day of Inactivity.

This was another day of inactivity for Washington, at least on the surface, in the diplomatic treatment of the Mexican problem. Rumors of the disap-pearance of General Huerta, later con-tradicted, created considerable interest in official circles.

William Bayard Hale, who has been conferring with General Carranza and conferring with General Carranza and his constitutionalist chiefs at Nogales, returned today and had a long talk with Secretary Bryan. News came to the navy department of the departure from European waters of the fourth division of the Atlantic fleet, comprising the battleships Connecticut, Kansas and Ohio, under command of Rear Admiral Beatty. This should be about December 15, when Admiral Eletcher, as the senior division officer, will be in the position of commanding three-fourths of the Atlantic fleet, leaving only one diivsion under the flag of Rear Admiral Badger, the commander-in-chief.

The woman suffrage movement has passed the ploneer stage; it has ceased to be an academic question and has entered the realm of politics, Mrs. Sherman M. Booth of Chicago said, in her address to the convention.

At the beginning of the feminist movement, the speaker said, women were divided into three classes. "The petted, pampered women, just pretty, selfish childeren, willing to be domestic household pets; another class composed of laboring women, drudges and slaves, too down-trodden to raise a voice except to wall over their lot; and then a third class, the great middle class of women, so steeped in the prejudices that environed them that they were appailed at the thought of deviating from sacred custom, never discerning that their own perspective was but the reflection of the sentiment created by a man-made world. Sex prejudices had penetrated so deeply into the human mind that woman, as well as man, accepted them as gospel, and it seemed as if the ages alone could eradicate them.

"But the same oppressions which subjugated and produced the pampered, the down-trodden and the prejudiced classes of women also created a fourth class, not deluded, but few in number, who were destined to lead the way out; heroic spirits, indomitable ploneers, precursors of woman suffrage.

This very necessity afforded the opposition fresh opportunities for ridicule, but even this had its compensation in the increased advertising it gave and the interest it aroused interest It aroused Interest Aroused.

"The deadliness of indifference gave way to public interest. The fact that a majority of those interested were opposed was of less consequence than that they were aroused to take sides openly or at all. Even the anti-suffrage organizations have had their part in advancing the cause of suffrage, by convincing the public first that the cause was worthy of consideration, and then by demonstrating the fallacles of the arguments against it. "The chief work of suffrage organizations in the past has been propagandal it has been necessary and advisable to court publicity. The ploneers of suffrage have done their work, and done it well. They have brought the movement to the stage where it is the paramount topic of the hour. It has ceased to be an academic question and has become a political one.

'For just as ridicule was the greatest handicap to suffrage, so the assumption of dignity has been its greatest asset, and dignity was attained the moment the cause assumed a political issue. The field and dignity was attained the moment the cause assumed a political issue. The field of politics differs radically from the school of propagands, and the tacties to be employed in each must necessarily vary as widely. So suffrage having reached the turning point and assumed the respectability of a political issue, it became necessary to adopt appropriate methods."
